Subject: RE: Validity of Power of Attorney --- Related to 10/17/08 Statute

I agree - I think the no change letter and RAR need to go to the company's last known address, with a copy to the POA. I haven't looked at law, but in some states even though a corporation may be dissolved by operation of law, it really goes into a sort of suspended animation, and can be revived by the late filing/payment of the annual corporate report. In that case, the POA may still be valid. If the letters come back as undeliverable, we normally research to get a better address, and I think sending the documents to the former President would qualify as due diligence (assuming there are no 6103 issues).

Let me know if you have any other questions.
